

DEPRESSION · THE DIFFERENCE, AND THE WAY BACK

Understanding depression

More than sadness — and more treatable than it can feel.

In your mood

Flat, heavy, or numb

In your body

Sleep, appetite, energy shift

In your life

Withdrawing, doing less

01 Sadness vs depression

Sadness is a normal response to loss, and it lifts with time. Depression is heavier and stickier — low mood or a loss of interest most of the day, nearly every day, for two weeks or more. The clearest marker isn't sadness itself, but the fading of pleasure in things you used to enjoy.

02 Why it deepens

Depression tells you nothing will help, so you do less — which removes the very things that lift mood, and the low deepens. Treatment reverses that loop gently, starting with small, planned, meaningful action rather than waiting for motivation to return.

03 What genuinely helps

- ✓ Behavioural activation — small, planned, rewarding activity
- ✓ CBT to loosen the grip of a harsh inner critic
- ✓ Support around sleep, movement and connection
- ✓ For some, medication alongside therapy, via your GP

THE PATTERN

The low spiral

Low mood invites us to withdraw, which removes reward and deepens the low. One small action breaks the loop.

PRACTICAL TOOLKIT

One small step

- ✓ Choose one small, meaningful action
- ✓ Do it before you feel ready
- ✓ Notice what shifts, however small

Action first; motivation follows.

WHEN TO SEEK HELP

If low mood has lasted more than two weeks, or you can't keep yourself safe, please reach out. Your GP can start a Mental Health Treatment Plan for rebated sessions.
